

Philip Cho

Burlington, Ontario

(647) 913-9391 | phlpcho@gmail.com

Professional Summary

Machine operator with years of production experience being trained in various areas in handling steel which include forming, loading, tearing, and testing. Possess a strong ability to prioritize and multitask in a fast-paced environment. Learn at a fast pace and provide others with effective ways to work efficiently and minimize safety risks while handling steel.

Work Experience

Machine Operator

Apr 2023 – Present

Tempel Steel; Burlington, Ontario

- Trained in operating a machine to form steel, load formed steel cores onto trays to be sent into a furnace, tear down formed steel cores from the furnace, and test steel to be packaged for processing.
- Provided training in multiple positions to be a multi-faceted worker that can handle multiple positions on a given day.
- Possessed a strong work ethic tailored to learn at a fast pace, multi-task, be a team player, and work in fast-paced environments.

Production Labourer

Jan 2023 – Apr 2023

Stackpole International; Ancaster, Ontario

- Interpreted designated measuring systems for parts inspections according to process sheet requirements.
- Demonstrated a great understanding of processing sheets.
- Identified and reported process defects that were intermittent and consistent including burrs, chips, and cracks.
- Used designated measuring systems to inspect parts according to process sheet requirements.

Education

Industrial Mechanic Millwright – Diploma

Sep 2026

Mohawk College; Hamilton, Ontario

Pre-Health Sciences – Pathway to Advanced Diplomas and Degrees

Sep 2024 – Apr 2025

Niagara College; Welland, Ontario

Ontario Secondary School Diploma

Sep 2010 – June 2014

Sir Allan Macnab Secondary School; Hamilton, Ontario